OBITUARY NOTICES OF THE FRIAR-PREACHERS, OR DOMINICANS, OF THE ENGLISH PROVINCE, FROM
THE YEAR OF OUR LORD 1650, COMPILED FROM
THE ARCHIVES OF THE MASTER-GENERAL OF THE DOMINICAN ORDER AT ROME, AND FROM THE RECORDS OF THE PROVINCE.

By Rev. C. F. RAYMUND PALMER, O.P.

At the Reformation, the Friar-Preachers, or Dominicans, possessed fifty-two priories and two subsidiary houses in England and Wales: and there was one priory of Sisters of the Second Order. But all these religious establishments were swept away, between July, 1538, and April, 1539, by the tyranny of Henry VIII. The Dominican Province was partially revived by Queen Mary, in 1555, when a community of men was re-organized in London, at the Priory of St. Bartholomew, in Smithfield, and the Sisters were restored to Dartford. F. William Perin was appointed Prior of Smithfield, and was also instituted Vicar-General of the Province, by the Master-General of the Order at Rome. Dr. Perin was buried, Aug. 22nd, 1558, at the high altar of his convent-church. After him, F. Richard Hargrave, being elected Prior, was confirmed in the office, Dec. 24th, and at the same time was put in charge over the Province, by the Master-General. In the summer of 1559, Elizabeth suppressed the community of Smithfield; and in July, when the Sisters of Dartford were exiled, Hargrave, as their confessor, accompanied them in their painful wanderings in the Netherlands. In the office of Vicar-General he was confirmed, Mar. 1st, 1560, the appointment being repeated, May 7th following. On his death, in 1566, still in the Sisters' service, the Dominican Province of England became desolated.

Although the Province was thus laid waste, it was never entirely extinguished. From time to time, Englishmen entered foreign convents, and a few returned into their native country, to labour in the vineyard of Christ. Ambassadors too had sometimes foreign Dominicans in their households. When brighter days seemed to be dawning on the Church, the Master-General, in 1622, re-organized the few Dominicans in the country as a Congregation, and appointed a Vicar-General over them. F. Philip Thomas Howard, of the noble family of Norfolk, restored monastic discipline, by establishing, in 1658, a convent of English Dominicans at Bornhem, in Flanders, and, in 1660, a house of Sisters of the Second Order at Vilvorde. Bornhem poured into England a full measure of apostolical missionaries, who planted important missions and stations up and down the country, till the French Revolution drove them out of their Belgian House. Since that time, however, their labours have been continued from new foundations.
